

Stephen M. Packman

Archer & Greiner, P.C.
USA

Stephen M. Packman is a shareholder with Archer & Greiner, P.C. and chairs the firm's Bankruptcy (Debtor/Creditors Rights) practice group. He represents companies in the restructuring of their businesses and in all types of insolvency and commercial litigation proceedings in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New York, nationally and internationally. He has represented Chapter 11 and 7 commercial debtors, creditor committees, creditors, trustees, equity, utilities, franchisors, litigants, and other parties in interest in wide array of industries including manufacturing, retail, aerospace, hospitality, environmental, agriculture, food service, distribution, transportation, construction, financial, real estate, health services, and franchises.

He also represents litigants in commercial disputes involving contractual matters, PACA claims and disputes, bonding issues and Pearlman doctrine claims. He represents parties in commercial professional malpractice litigation and has served as an expert in this area. He also represents clients in appellate litigation. Mr. Packman represents accounts receivable and other asset based lenders in financing transactions and litigation, including insolvency matters.

Mr. Packman is a member of the American Bankruptcy Institute (Unsecured Trade Creditors and Business Reorganization Committees); Turnaround Management Association (Board of Directors, Delaware Valley Chapter); INSOL International (International Association of Restructuring, Insolvency & Bankruptcy Professionals); Commercial Law League; the New Jersey Bar Association (Bankruptcy Section) and regularly attends continuing legal educational and other events sponsored by these and other organizations.

He represents pro bono debtors in connection with the Rutgers Law School bankruptcy project in Camden, New Jersey.

Mr. Packman received his law degree from Temple University and his Bachelor of the Arts Degree from the University of Michigan. He resides in Haddonfield, New Jersey with his family.